Shrinker

Bob King

Bob passed this along at Keith Walker's Close Encounters Convention in Rochester this past November and took us completely by surprise. sa from his lecture notes in the sixties. There is some one-time prop he most convincing Shrinking Deck routine that we've ever seen.

You may ignore the first three paragraphs. All of this work has been done for you.

You will need a brass cotter pin one end and two prongs projecting from it), a deck of midget cards, a to cut up, and an extra Three of Diamonds. First of all, remove the aside. Then cut the deck in half widthwise. Throw one half away. Mak s in the center of the half deck which you have kept. Corner short cards are face down) of the card beneath the Three of Diamonds. Place one of the half-cards aside.

Drill a hole through the inner left corner of the face-down half deck so the prongs of the cotter pin will slide easily through. Cut a notch large enough for the button-end of the cotter pin to fit in in about the top ten cards of the half deck. Slide the cotter pin through the drilled hole so the button rests in the cutout notch and open the prongs so the cards will be held together (firmly, but not too tightly). Take that half card you placed aside before you began drilling and glue it to the back of the gimmick to hide the notch and cotter pin (fig. 1). That's it.
