THE DISPOSABLE DECK

The Effect: A deck of cards is crumpled into a ball and tossed away.

I debuted this effect at The Magic Castle™. In order to make the prop I spent time bent over a desk splitting cards, cutting and gluing. After seeing the reaction The Disposable Deck received, I decided to have the prop professionally manufactured. The prop you now own is more elusive in every way than the handmade version I labored over.

You have been supplied with 100 false decks that have been pre-scored, pre-cut and pre-glued. Figure 1 shows where the scores are located, and where the glue has been applied. Simply fold along the scores and secure the "tabs" by monitoring the glue as one would an envelope. Voila – you have a false deck, a paper shell, which will pass for a deck of cards.

The Disposable Deck is a prop that can be used by magicians of all skill levels, from beginner to advanced. I will describe different approaches to using the prop, all of which will give your audiences an effective shock of surprise and amusement.

I most often use the Disposable Deck with a deck switch (more on this later), but there are many ways to put this prop to use. Let's first explore some basic approaches.

The Disposable Deck

At the end of a series of card tricks, the magician takes the deck, holds it in one hand, and slowly crushes it into a little ball.
