EFFECT:- The magician talks about computer dating and how people may have seen adverts in newspapers and magazines for agencies who can bring together couples with the same interests likes, dislikes etc. However, these services cost money, and the performer says that he has found a way to by-pass the system and save paying out.

From a leather wallet the magician removes 6 laminated cards, each bearing a picture of a girl's face with her name. Choosing a spectator, the performer asks him to imagine that he has sent his details to the computer dating company and that these are the 6 names
... by the computer as being suitable.
