PERFORMANCE

Square up the five card packet and slip them into your breast pocket for the moment. Force (from a deck of the same coloured backs as the SUIT and COLOUR cards above) the X card of the value missing from the five card packet.

Have this card tabled face down without you seeing its face. Introduce the five card packet and explain that these THREE cards will reveal the identity of the selection.

Perform a Buckle Count ... take the top face down card over into your other hand then buckle the bottom card so that you can take the next three, squared as one, over beneath the first card. Finally place the third card, which you explain has flipped face up, face up on top of the cards in your other hand. This reveals one face up card which you say is of the same colour as the selection ... the spectator confirms this.

Perform a second B/C and another (?) card flips face up and you explain that it is the same suit as the selection and ... the spectator confirms this.

Perform a third B/C and another (?) card flips face up and you explain that it is the same value as the selection and ... the spectator confirms this.

Perform a fourth B/C and one card flips face down again but ... you flip it face up and on top of the cards in your other hand ... it too is the same value as the selection!

Perform a fifth B/C and another card flips face down again but ... you flip it face up and on top of the cards in your other hand ... it too is the same value as the selection! The only missing card of the same value is the selected suit so you flip it face up on the table to show this.

Finally you mention that the back design of the selection is different to the other three so ... you drop it face up onto the cards in your hand, flip the packet face down and Elmsley count to reveal four cards of the same coloured back design!
