GEOFF MALTBY

The Magician shows clearly the Three of Clubs and two other different cards. Explaining the "Three Card Monte" trick, the spectator is requested to follow the three, but try as he might, he is always wrong. Then the cards start reversing, vanishing and reappearing. Eventually the three face-up cards are seen to be all the same indifferent card. Pretending to hear the spectator say that he suspects that the wily performer is using double-face cards they are turned over one by one... The first is seen to have a regular back... The second bears a large colourful Butterfly or Moth while the third indifferent card is seen to have the pips of the three of Clubs completely cut-out from the centre of the card.
