Aus dem Umschlagtext:

The art of conjuring is arguably the earliest recorded theatrical skill: its practitioners have variously been called necromancer, wizard, alchemist, charlatan, jongleur and magician. The popular entertainer, Paul Daniels, has today revolutionised the most spellbinding of performing arts, proving himself the modern master of an ancient craft. John Fisher's book, without following a strict chronological plan, records the progression of magic through the years and relates Paul Daniels to the most relevant of his illustrious predecessors and contemporaries...
